YTL Power (YTLP MK)

Buy (Maintained)

Acquires c.19% Stake In Ranhill; Keep BUY

- Keep BUY and MYR2.43 TP, 12% upside with c.3% FY24F (Jun) yield.

Although the news of YTL Power acquiring an 18.87% stake in Ranhill Utilities (RAHH MK, BUY, TP: MYR0.72) caught us by surprise, we believe it could be a strategic fit for the former. This is largely due to its experience in water treatment and power generation, even as it continues to solidify its footprint in Johor, where it is also developing data centres and solar parks.

- Buys substantial stake in RAHH. YTLP announced that it has become a substantial shareholder of RAHH after acquiring 243.3m shares or a 18.87% stake in the latter. We believe the block of shares was acquired from Cheval Infrastructure Fund LP, which was also holding 18.8% stake prior to that. We estimate the total investment at MYR141m, assuming the block of shares was purchased at MYR0.58/unit – which implies valuations of 15.9x FY24F P/E and 0.9x FY24F P/BV.

- Ranhill overview. Ranhill has three segments – environment, engineering services and energy. The environment segment was the largest revenue contributor, accounting for 68% of its total MYR1.7bn revenue in FY22. This is followed by engineering services (16.7%) and energy (15.3%). The bulk of the environment segmental revenue comes from being Johor's sole water operator – where it manages 46 water treatment plants with a total daily capacity of 2.13bn litres. Meanwhile, the energy division entails two combined cycle gas turbine or CCGT power plants with a capacity of 190MW each in Sabah. Ranhill also owns a 50MW large-scale solar or LSS 4 solar farm with a commercial operation date scheduled for end-2023. IT also intends to participate in more solar projects including the Corporate Green Power Programme or CGPP. Another catalyst for the long run would be its engineering services segment, via subsidiary Ranhill Bersekutu potentially securing any consultant-related services package from the Kuala Lumpur-Singapore High Speed Rail (HSR) project.

- Could be a strategic fit for YTLP. Although the acquisition caught us by surprise, we believe it could be a strategic fit for YTLP, given its experience in both water treatment and power generation. This will also further strengthen its footprint in Johor, where the company is also developing data centres and solar parks. There should not be an impact on earnings for now, since YTLP's stake is still below the 20% threshold. As such we maintain our earnings estimates for the company. YTLP's net gearing is at 1.37x as of FY23, but this acquisition should not strain its balance sheet significantly, given its healthy operating cash flow and solid cash balance of MYR9bn.

- Stay BUY. Our unchanged MYR2.43 TP includes a 2% ESG discount, based on YTLP's ESG score of 2.9. Downside risks: Weaker-than-expected plant performance, and higher-than-expected operating costs.

Overall ESG Score: 2.9 (out of 4)

E: GOOD

Different units are exposed to a number of environmental risks. In line with YTL Group's aim to become carbon neutral by 2050, PowerSeraya has set an interim target of a 60% GHG emissions reduction from its power plant operations by 2030. Wessex Water aims to achieve net zero operational carbon emissions by 2030 and full decarbonisation by 2040. Meanwhile, the potential development of solar assets in Kulai could ramp up its RE capacity in the longer run.

S: EXCELLENT

YTL Power maintains good policies and competitive benefits for its employees. Further disclosures in this area could help improve the score. Health & safety policies are in place, with good disclosure. However, it had a 3.63 lost time injury (LTI) rate and one fatality in FY22. The group is very active in community engagement activities.

G: EXCELLENT

The size of its board of directors is within the average of the industry. Directors are skilled and experienced, and there is female representation, but its number of independent directors is short of the level recommended by the Malaysian Code on Corporate Governance. Timely and reliable information is provided to shareholders, whose rights are also protected.
